TAIV SQUARED

Our company takes Taiv's business model in a fun new direction that will wow clientele. Our product will alter the media within the media. I hope you understood Inception, because we're getting a little bit meta here.

Instead of replacing the entire media displaying on a businesses television, our product will specifically find instances where a television appears within the program, and replace that television's screen with an advertisement for the business showing the program.

For example, imagine Family Guy is on at Original Joe's. Any time a television appears within Family Guy, its screen will show an advertisement for Original Joe's. This will make it look like Original Joe's is part of the Family Guy universe. This will definitely grab the attention of patrons at the restaurant, and spark conversation. It won't be long before everyone is sharing tiktoks and instagram reels and the product launches into virality.
